Difficulties Found in Pearl Harbor Bar Work.

NO DREDGING WAS DONE LAST WEEK

Rough Weather, Poor Mooring, and a Breakdown Caused the Delay.

"Pearl Harbor bar will constitute a stumbling block for the development of Uncle Sam's naval plans here for some time," remarked a man who is engaged on the dredging work at the entrance to the harbor yesterday. 'That is, it will if present indications Oshu Pi'n 6 p. c.
Olas Pi'n 6, p. c.
Waialus Ag, Co. 6 p. c.
Kahuku 6 p. c. amount to anything, and it will be considerable time before vessels can be taken in and out of that harbor in safety.

"The trouble, even after the channel is dredged out, will be that southerly winds will cause swells and currents that may fill it up again, and if it does not fill up, big vessels will have to use a very smart tugboat to haul them in and out of the channel, as the swell will force them up against the banks of

Very little work was done by Cotton Bros. at the bar last week. In the first place, a heavy swell set in on the day that work was commenced, and this caused the suction end of the dredger's pipe to knock so hard on the bottom that it was broken off. The dredge was then beached, and work was started to change the dredge so that in future the ladder supporting the suction pipe could move in any direction, and thus be able to successfully encounter the swells. The work of repairing the dredge was completed yesterday, and dredging operations will probably commence again today, unless the rough weather of yesterday afternoon centinues this morning.

Another difficulty was encountered in mooring the dredge. To obviate this minutes slower than Greenwich time, be- difficulty arrangements have now been made to use powerful anchors to moor the lines to.

The swell also made it difficult to pump the sand from the bottom to a scow, and the scows are now to be abandoned. A pipe line 1,000 feet in length, supported by rafts, will be

Men at work on the dredges say that heavy surfs pound over the bar during the greater part of the time, causing great difficulty in carrying out the

If the weather is fair today another big suction dredge to be used on the work will be towed down to the bar,
